“...but the breast as a timeless signifier of sex, life and nurturance now has to fight against its opposite meaning: the vessel of disease and death....for better or for worse, bigger or smaller, in sickness and in health, breasts are wedded to our bodies and, in the best of circumstances, can offer us both pleasure and power.”

Marilyn Yalom, 1997

The aim of the symposium is to:

Provide a comprehensive review and summary of all aspects dealing with breast cancer and its management – surgical, medical, oncological and psychological.

This course is limited to 50 registrants.

RSVP by 1 December 2011.
